

Eight Miners Rescued From Wreckage Of Coal Tunnel

By KYLE VANCE
Pineville, Ky., Dec. 29 (AP)—Eight miners, rescued from the wreckage of an explosion-shattered coal tunnel near here, were safe in a Pineville hospital today and two others were dead, as rescue workers pressed their search for the remaining 21 men.

All but one of the eight, removed from the tunnel last night, were reported responding satisfactorily to medical treatment. The eighth, identified as Tom McQueen of Pineville, was reported in a serious condition. All were injured in the blast Wednesday.

Rescue crews found the severely burned body of an unidentified miner today, near the spot where they expected to locate the remaining miners. The first casualty was identified last night as Albert Bennett, 64, also of Pineville, who was found alive but died before he could be brought out of the tunnel of the Kentucky Straight Creek Coal company mine number one.

Crowd Awaits News
A crowd of close to 200 men, women and children huddled around the mine entrance throughout the night, awaiting anxiously for some word about the fate of the miners still inside the long tunnel. That word was expected momentarily.

Full medical supplies and resuscitation equipment were taken into the mine after midnight for quick use when any of the men were found. Doctors remained with rescue workers and an emergency telephone line from the mine entrance was extended 2,000 feet to facilitate communication from any point in the tunnel to the outside.

Rescue crews sent out for 12 pairs of gloves but there was no indication why they were wanted.

Among those rescued last night was a miner identified as Bud Towns, 52, of Pineville, who survived the Kettle Island explosion in another mine near here in 1929. Sixteen men died in that explosion.

Rescue 2 Brothers
Two others were identified as brothers, Bill Branstetter, 41, and John H. Branstetter, 44, both of Pineville.

The other five were identified as Ivan Philpot, 51, Joe Hatfield, 40, and Tom McQueen, 30, all of Pineville, and Charles Lingar, 39, and Huey Miller, 31, of nearby Four Mile.

The nine men were found in a corridor, just off the main tunnel, and had escaped the heavy concussion of the explosion, rescue workers said.

A wave of excitement spread through the crowd outside the mine entrance when first reports were sent from the tunnel that some of the men had been found alive. Emergency calls were sent out to all available doctors and ambulances.

The crowd, which had waited quietly—almost hopelessly—through the anxious hours since Wednesday, suddenly sprang to life. The wait for more information from the mine started.

Wait 4 Hours
Men, women and children surged closer to the entrance but soon gave way for doctors and other assistants to make their way through the crowd.

It was four hours or more before any names of the rescued men were revealed. That came when the first stretchers were carried out through the mine exit.

Friends and neighbors recognized Lingar and Miller, both unconscious from their long imprisonment in the foul air. No more stretchers followed and the first two rescued men were removed to the mining company office for further medical treatment.

Another long wait started. One hour, two hours. The crowd buzzed with expectancy, each person hoping to recognize some friend or relative on the next stretcher.

"Log" Is Found

Finally, the third miner was removed. Then the fourth and fifth, each carried on a stretcher by members of the rescue crews. They came word that one of the nine—Bennett's oldest man in the crew caught by the explosion—had failed to survive the ordeal.

Members of one crew told of finding a "log" written by the rescued men on a wooden board inside the corridor where they were found. The "log" said the men were still able to walk at 11:30 p. m. yesterday and had barricaded themselves at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday in a corridor to seal off the foul air.

The writing became less legible and finally dwindled off into marks which were unreadable. Rescue workers said the men, weakened by shock and lack of oxygen, would have been unable to survive much longer.

BOYER CHARGED WITH RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS

The Boyer-McPerren case, in which Mrs. Violet M. Boyer, 25, of Biglerville R. 1, is charged with stealing a wallet containing approximately $200 from Roy M. McPerren, 57, of Seven Stars, on December 15, became a three-way proposition as borough police involved Mrs. Boyer's husband, William Martin Boyer, 40, in the affair.

Boyer was released from county jail Friday night in $300 bail after being charged with receiving stolen goods, the stolen goods being the wallet and $200 which Mrs. Boyer said she threw over a fence in Race Horse alley the night of her arrest.

The wallet was never found, arousing police skepticism of Mrs. Boyer's story. Then Boyer was arrested after a check of his recent spending proclivities. Police said that Boyer admitted to them he had not worked for seven weeks prior to December 15 and that his wife had not worked for three months prior to that date, but here, according to police, are some of Boyer's expenditures, listed by himself:

Explains Source of Funds
Repairs to automobile, $35.75; ball bond for wife, $40; rent, $6; gas and oil, $2; groceries, $3; Christmas presents for their two children, $2.50; payment on a personal loan, $7.25; clothing for wife, $36.91; miscellaneous, $15. Boyer had $27 left in cash, police said.

He told police he had some money saved, and that on December 18 he borrowed $150 from the Personal Finance company, Hanover, David B. Kirby, general manager of the finance company, told Chief of Police Robert C. Harpster that his company had made a loan of $54 to Boyer on December 24. Boyer had previously borrowed $95 on November 21, Chief Harpster said he had learned.

Charged by Culp
The charge against Boyer was placed by Police Officer Charles W. Culp, Jr., and he was committed to jail Thursday night by Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder.

Mrs. Boyer was charged with taking McPerren's wallet while the two sat in a parked automobile in the rear of the C. G. Murphy five and ten store Saturday evening, December 15. She told police at that time that she spent $36.91 for clothing, after running away from McPerren, and threw the wallet and remaining money over the fence when she saw the police coming. Mrs. Boyer signed a guilty plea before Justice Snyder to the larceny charge, and was held for court. McPerren pleaded guilty to pandering and was also held for court. Both were released in $1,000 bail each.

In the front room of their modest home at 31 West Middle street, Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Fisher sold, each of whom has passed the three-quarter century milestone, but still enjoy good health and are active, ply the ancient trade of tailoring.

Theirs is the time-honored craftsmanship of hand-tailoring; tedious and meticulous with none of the modern appliances of the craft except a sewing machine.

For 49 years this quiet, unassuming couple, has done tailoring in Gettysburg, 14 years of which they have been at their present location.

On Sunday, December 30, they will observe their 46th wedding anniversary. They plan no celebration of this milestone in their happy life. As usual they will enjoy their Sunday dinner together.

Mrs. Solt will indulge in her own personal gift to her husband. "We aren't married and we haven't been . . . and we won't be until 1999."

The Solt's were married December 30, 1899 but the clerk of the courts erred in dating the license. Their license was the last issued in the last year of the 19th century. The clerk of the courts started a new book for the first year of the 20th century. In recording the license he erroneously dated the license 1999. The Solt's never bothered to have the date changed.

GETTYSBURG IS REJECTED FOR U.N.O. CAPITAL

The United Nations peace capital will not be located in historic Gettysburg. It will be located in the Boston or New York metropolitan areas, the site to be selected and announced later. All other bids from numerous communities in the United States were rejected by the committee after a secret session of five hours in London Friday.

The committee's choice was narrowed to the following sites: Plymouth, Worcester, Auburn, Cape Cod, Orange and Middlesex Falls, all in Massachusetts; the Providence area in Rhode Island and Westchester county, Westhampton Beach, Hyde Park and Kingston in New York state.

Gettysburg's bid for the UNO peace capital was cable to the UNO organization in session in London on Monday following a luncheon meeting at the Hotel Gettysburg of Chamber of Commerce members and Congressman Chester H. Gross.

40 Areas Offer Bids
Several suggested sites between Gettysburg and Cashtown and north of Gettysburg on the Harrisburg road were considered by the local group.

The site committee considered offers from 40 areas. Philadelphia and Atlantic City, N. J., were rejected, according to dispatches from London, because of their proximity to Washington. Navy Island, advocated by the Canadians, was rejected as too near Niagara Falls, and all sites within 10 miles of New York city were ruled out.

The UNO said the committee probably would inspect facilities at Princeton, N. J., during its visit.

One factor on the committee's formal announcement, was that the site "should not be located within or top near a large metropolitan area."

Among the standards demanded in the final choice are: Accessibility, good radio and air travel service, healthful climate and "freedom from any attempt at improper political control or exercise of undesirable local influences, for instance, through the local press."

The UNO sub-committee to visit proposed sites would leave for the United States Jan. 3 or 4 to visit "at least 15 places and probably more."

The interim committee had previously issued a statement saying the sub-committee had been instructed to "consider possible sites within an area 50 to 60 miles around Boston and within an area east of the Hudson river in New York state and Connecticut between 25 to 30 miles from New York city."

However, the UNO said this announcement did not rule out other communities and specifically said Princeton, N. J., was still under consideration.

Gettysburg's bid for consideration as the United Nations capital has reached the UNO commission's headquarters in London, and has been assured of proper consideration, Henry W. Garvin, president of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce, was informed Friday afternoon.

"Your telegram has been put before appropriate committee of preparatory commission for necessary action," said a cablegram received by Mr. Garvin from Gladwyn Jebb, executive secretary, Whitehall.

Hampton Man Is Sentenced In York

Howard W. Palmer, Hampton, was sentenced by Judge Ray P. Sherwood in the county court at York Friday morning to spend 30 days in jail and pay a fine of $200, as well as costs totaling $140. Palmer had entered a plea of guilty last Aug. 28 to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated.

Palmer was arrested June 1 by State Policeman J. B. Topley near Stony Brook. The policeman told the court he had found Palmer asleep in his parked truck six miles east of York on that date and had detected the odor of intoxicants. At that time, Topley told the court, he warned Palmer not to try to drive while in an intoxicated condition. Later in the day, Topley noticed the same truck being driven by Palmer. He stopped the vehicle and placed the driver under arrest.

VETERAN TAKES BRIDE TODAY IN BONNEAUVILLE

Miss Rita Monica Sneeringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Sneeringer, Gettysburg R. 5, and Bernard Walter, son of Francis Walter, of York, formerly of South street, Gettysburg, were united in marriage at a low nuptial mass performed in St. Joseph's Catholic church at Bonneauville this morning at 9 o'clock.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Leo J. Krichen. An uncle of the bride, the Rev. Peter Huffnagle, O.S.A., Havana, Cuba, was present in the sanctuary during the ceremony.

The attendants were Miss Anna Sneeringer, a sister of the bride who is now a nurse at St. Joseph's hospital in Baltimore, and Rodney F. Sneeringer, a brother of the bride.

Two other brothers, Bernard and Francis Sneeringer, were the ushers. The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace cut on princess lines with a sweetheart neckline, long pointed sleeves and a long train. A shoulder-length veil fell from a coronet of beads. She carried a nosegay of white roses.

Walter Served Overseas
The bridegroom wore a dress of pink tulle trimmed with lace. She also had a shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of mixed, old-fashioned flowers.

Mrs. Preston Smith, McSherrytown, presided at the organ. The Rosini wedding marches were used and the children's choir sang hymns. The bride, who is the organist at St. Joseph's church, is employed by the Hanover Shoe factory.

Mr. Walter, who was discharged from the army November 26 after 45 months of service, two years of which were spent in the Pacific, is employed by the Victor Products corporation here.

A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents and there will be a reception there this evening after which the couple will leave on a wedding trip. They will reside at the bride's home.

Jerusalem, Dec. 29 (AP)—Terrorists responsible for explosions and shootings which resulted in 10 deaths in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv Thursday night were sought by police today among nearly 2,000 persons arrested in the biggest roundup in Palestine's history.

The suspects, lodged in detention barracks, were picked up throughout the day yesterday. Every male under 60 years of age, including the entire guest list of the Eden hotel, was arrested in the Bezalel section of Jerusalem.

The curfew was lifted in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv today until further notice. But reports from the neighboring town of Ramth Gan told of a large-scale search by British troops there for persons suspected of participating in the disorders.

In Jerusalem the curfew was to

BULLETINS

(By The Associated Press)

The National Labor Relations Board, which since July, 1943, has spent about a million dollars conducting strike votes, was without funds today to carry on further balloting and some 600 labor union requests for votes were left stranded.

PHOTOGRAPHERS HOSTS TO LADIES

Nineteen members and guests of the Gettysburg Photographic society attended the ladies' night meeting Friday evening at the home of Prof. Dunning Idle, Jr., Baltimore street, after a dinner at the Green Parrot tea room in Emmitsburg.

In addition to a display of recent prints, which were judged by members and by guests, the members exhibited a collection of about 50 prints made since the last ladies' night program last summer.

A picture "Lady Moon" by Paul Pensinger received first place on votes of the members and was rated fourth by the guests. "River Scene" by Professor Idle was placed second by the members and first by the guests; "Old House" by Paul A. Kinsey, third by members and second by guests; "Bunnie Beware!" by Maurice Stoops, fourth by members and fifth by the guests; a child portrait, "Susanne," by Mr. Pensinger, fifth by the members and third by the guests; and a picture of a girl with a shawl by Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen tied for fifth position on both ballots.

The group discussed plans for the Adams County Photographic Exhibit of 1946 of which the society is a co-sponsor. The display will be held in the Gettysburg National bank February 8 to 16 and will be open to all amateur photographers in the county.

Persons present Friday evening in addition to members and wives included Dr. and Mrs. Robert Fortenbaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Edmund W. Thomas, Jr. The next regular meeting will be at Mr. Pensinger's home January 24.

BUSINESS SLOW AT MART TODAY

Offerings on the Farmers' market were exceedingly limited in scope today. The number of vendors was reduced almost to the vanishing point, and customers were scarce. Those on the market this morning blamed the light day on the weather and on the fact that it is midway between two holidays.

Pork and meat products were off the market entirely. Those farmers usually on hand with sausage, side pork, loins, scrapple, etc. were absent. However, poultry was in good supply, with young fryers being offered at 55 cents, others at 58 cents and ducks at 50 cents.

Eggs dropped two cents on the market today, selling for 58 cents a dozen. There were small supplies of onions at 15 cents a box; sweet potatoes, 20 cents a box, sauerkraut, two pounds for 35 cents; cabbage, six cents a pound; cukes, 18 cents a dozen; bread, 15 and 20 cents a loaf; pies, 30 and 35 cents. Mush was offered at 25 cents a pan.

St. Paul's church will probably be the shipping center. The committee said also that a house-to-house canvass by Boy Scouts might be held later.

Members of the committee, in addition to Chairman Richardson, are Richard Little, Paul King, Luther Fatter, Leon Gage, Thomas Cline, Jr., Clarence Swartz and Dr. J. R. Riden.

WORK ON ANNEX AT HOSPITAL IS GOING FORWARD

Work on the Christian H. Musselman Annex to the Warner hospital is going forward in spite of rains, snow and low temperatures.

Raymond H. Hollister, superintendent of construction for the contractor, Earl E. Cump of Chambersburg, told The Gettysburg Times that the pouring of concrete foundations for new annex at the south end of the present structure is half complete and that "with half a break from the weather man" the foundations will be finished in about two weeks.

No date for completion of the entire structure has been fixed because of the uncertainty on delivery dates for materials.

Work on the excavation of about 1,150 cubic yards of earth and rock has been completed—after some delays by heavy rains which made considerable pumping necessary.

Heat Cement Mix
Except in the most extreme cold the work on the foundation has gone forward using heated water and with the cement, stone and sand mixture being heated in the mixer before pouring.

When the foundations are finished the construction of the reinforced steel framework for the two-story annex will be started and other stages of the new structure will be undertaken as rapidly as materials can be secured.

A dozen men are employed on the job—all of them local and most of them ex-servicemen.

Completely Modern Unit

The annex, a gift of the C. H. Musselman Foundation as a memorial to the late Mr. Musselman, prominent Biglerville canner, will house nine private and semi-private rooms providing space for 20 beds. The second floor will contain a maternity wing, delivery room, nurseries for sick babies and well babies and two wards. Each floor will have a solarium.

Each room will have running water, toilet facilities, radio and telephone connections, air sterilizers and will be air conditioned. In the basement will be offices, clinic rooms, a pharmacy room, an extra dining room and other special purpose rooms.

The annex will be of fireproof construction, the outer brick wall to correspond with the present building with stone trim.

The new annex will involve driveway changes and a 100-car parking area will be laid out in front of the building. A large elevator in the annex will open inside and out.

The annex measures approximately 80 by 80 feet and is arranged in an "L" shape.

No figure ever has been announced on the total cost of the new building.

4,074,937 WAR STAMPS SOLD BY TIMES CARRIERS

Carrier boys and girls for The Gettysburg Times sold 4,074,937 war stamps from December 13, 1941 to December 28, 1945 as their contribution to the "win the war" effort during the country's most serious emergency.

Their efforts total $407,493.70 toward the financial drive, to place them in the top bracket of the ten leading papers in Pennsylvania and in the upper brackets, nationally.

On the basis of population of area and newspaper circulation The Times' carriers did "one of the commendable jobs in the country" according to the national committee and earned the praises of the Treasury Department officials on numerous occasions.

Times' carriers earned many awards from the government for their efforts.

Lauded By Truman

Philadelphia, Dec. 29 (AP)—Newspaper carrier boys of 937 daily newspapers are laying down their wartime task as salesmen of war savings stamps with the grateful thanks of the U. S. Government.

President Truman addressing the boys in a letter to Howard W. Stodghill, business manager of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, who originated the newsboy sales program, wrote:

"I have been told that the end of the Victory loan campaign will mark the closing of an important unit in the war financing program—the newspaper boys' War Savings Stamp Sales Program. Since September, 1941, more than 150,000 newspaper boys, representing 937 newspapers, have sold 1,740,735,355 ten cent war saving stamps or the equivalent—a yield for the treasury of $174,073,535.

"That is truly a remarkable achievement.

"In many thousands of instances your loyal and patriotic efforts have resulted in the sales of war securities that would not otherwise have been made. Your work has had a three-fold benefit. First, it has been a practical lesson to you in American citizenship. Second, the appeal that you have made to others reminded that they too had a duty to perform on the home front. Third, the funds you brought into the treasury aided your country in an hour of dire need.

"As President of the United States, I take this occasion to express to you, in behalf of the American people, heartfelt gratitude."

Praised By Others

Letters hailing the work of the newsboys were received also from Secretary of the Treasury Fred Vinson; Ted R. Gamble, national director of the U. S. Treasury's war finance division, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., former secretary of the treasury.

Stodghill said U. S. Treasury Department statisticians estimated the money raised by the boys would buy any of these: a battleship of the Missouri class; two aircraft carriers; 11 destroyers; 290 superfortresses; 145,000 jeeps, or 348,000,000 clips of ammunition.

DREISER DIES; NOTED NOVELIST

Hollywood, Dec. 29 (AP)—Theodore Dreiser, one of America's leading modern novelists, is dead.

A heart attack last night claimed the 74-year old writer, an outstanding realist who came in with the present century and rose to literary eminence through critical derision after abandoning a newspaper career, which he claimed was "too brutal."

Physicians said the writer, whose novel, "An American Tragedy," published 20 years ago, was one of his greatest literary works, appeared to rally after the first attack early yesterday, but succumbed to the second, 15 hours later.

At his bedside was his second wife, Helen. His first wife, the former Sarah Osborne White of St. Louis, died in 1942 at the age of 63. There were no children.

Born at Terre Haute, Ind., in 1871, the son of a German couple, John and Sarah Dreiser, Theodore began early to brood over the "brutalities" of everyday life—a despair that soon etched itself firmly in his

GOVERNMENT PANEL GOES ON IN G-M CASE

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—Representatives of the CIO United Automobile Workers marshaled data from government agencies today to persuade a presidential fact-finding panel that General Motors can pay 30 percent higher wages.

The panel pressed on with its proceedings despite the corporation's walkout over the issue of whether its ability to pay should be considered. Chairman Lloyd K. Garrison said members would meet tomorrow if necessary to complete hearings.

When President Truman set up the panel he gave it 20 days—until next Thursday—to finish its work. Corporation officials in Detroit sent word they were willing to continue negotiating with the union in the meantime, and Vice President Walter P. Reuther of the auto workers said the union was, too.

Use Other Sources
But Reuther added: "We'd like to talk about wages as related to economic facts."

The company, in its withdrawal from the fact-finding proceedings yesterday, contended that is prices, profits and ability to pay were "not facts" but forecasts and estimates of the future and not "proper factors" in determining wages as applied to an individual business.

In the absence of company figures on its price-profit position, the union prepared exhibits it said came from records of the Securities and Exchange Commission, Federal Trade Commission, War Production Board, Commerce Department, Office of War Mobilization and other government agencies.

Reuther and Donald Montgomery, the union's consumer counsel, said the data originated in the corporation's books, "even though the company won't show its books to us."

RETAIL PRICE OF COAL GOES UP 10 CENTS ON JAN. 2

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—Householders and other consumers will pay 10 cents more a ton for coal and coke of all kinds beginning January 2.

Retail dealers are being allowed to increase prices by that amount "to compensate for higher costs of operations x x x and to assure essential supplies during the current heating season."

Announcing this last night, OPA said it is the first direct increase granted to retailers since the start of price control.

Only On Deliveries

These dealers have been allowed to pass on to customers all price hikes that have been granted heretofore to mine operators, but this is the first time they have received a general increase that does not also apply to producers.

OPA said retailers' increased operation costs are mainly for labor and replacement and repair of equipment.

All types of solid fuels except firewood are covered by the increase. This includes, for example, briquettes and lignite.

However, the higher price may be charged only for fuel delivered to premises where it is consumed. The increase does not apply on sales between dealers.

FOSSILS MAY LOCATE COAL

Pittsburgh, Dec. 29 (AP)—A study of plant fossils may help geologists locate in the near future new and hitherto unsuspected coal fields in Pennsylvania, Dr. James M. Schopf of the U. S. Bureau of Mines asserts.

Speaking before the 58th annual convention of the geology society of America which held its final sessions today, Dr. Schopf said that plant fossils found in coal seams are being compared with similar fossils found miles away where coal has not been discovered.

If the investigations prove as valuable as hoped, Dr. Schopf said, it is extremely likely geologists will be able to tell almost exactly where new coal deposits may be found.

A feature of the four-day meeting was presentation of the Penrose Medal for outstanding contributions to the science of geology to Dr. Felix Andries Vening Meinesz, distinguished Dutch scientist.

Dr. Meinesz invented a pendulum used to measure gravity under the sea. A refugee from his native country, he worked with the U. S. Navy, conducting two submarine cruises to make gravity measurements in the West Indies.

Spain Balks At Foreign Meddling

Madrid, Dec. 29 (AP)—The Spanish government asserted today that Spain would not tolerate "interference of the foreigner in its internal affairs."

The statement, issued by Francisco Franco's Council of Ministers, apparently was in answer to a projected meeting of the United States, France and Britain to review their relations with Spain.

The communique said that Spain stood "ready to isolate itself" from countries which have used her as a "lightning rod to draw off internal storms," and accused Communists of waging a "campaign of defamation" to smear the Franco government.

Both the allies and the Axis had planned during the war to violate Spain's neutrality, the statement said, but these "machinations" were defeated by her "firm, gentlemanly" foreign policy.

TRUMAN BUSY ON PEOPLE'S TALK; SIGNS 64 BILLS

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Truman secluded himself and a small staff of aides aboard the yacht Williamsburg today to write a straight-to-the-people speech he will broadcast next Thursday.

Secretary of State Byrnes planned to join him late today to report on the Big Three foreign ministers conference at Moscow.

The President started his four-day trip down the Potomac river to Chesapeake bay after a crammed two hours of desk work at the White House in which he signed 64 bills and resolutions.

He accompanied his approval of a bill extending the second War Powers Act six months with the assertion that there must be a further extension. It is from this act that the Chief Executive derives his rationing and priorities powers.

"We know that our economy will be plagued with major war-born shortages six months from now, and that the government must have the means of dealing with these shortages," Mr. Truman's statement said. "There must, therefore, be further legislation to cover the period after June 30, 1946."

Among other measures the President signed soon after he arrived by plane yesterday from his Christmas visit home in Missouri were those:

- 1—Liberalizing the loan and educational benefits in the GI Bill of Rights.
- 2—Appropriating $2,400,000,000 in deficiency funds for various government agencies, including $750,000,000 for UNRRA, $191,000,000 for veterans housing, $125,000,000 for navigation and flood control projects, and $1,000,000,000 for the National Service Life Insurance fund.
- 3—Relaxing immigration laws to admit foreign-born wives, husbands or children of members of the armed forces.
- 4—Authorizing an investigation of means of increasing the capacity and security of the Panama Canal.

He said the board is seeking factual information on the needs for housing in various sections of the state and after receiving this information, consideration "will be given to any remedies which may be available to help alleviate the situation."

South Favorite In Blue-Gray Match

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 29 (AP)—Two get-together teams of gridiron stars—one from north of the Mason-Dixon line, the other from the south—took the field today in Dixieland's annual Blue-Gray game.

A forecast of favorable weather brought predictions of a sellout crowd of 22,500, first in the eight-year history of the intersectional clash.

The boys who like to guess—with money—on the outcome of such things gave the razzle-dazzle southern team a seven-point advantage over their less experienced rivals. The Grays have won four times since the series began in 1938, the Yankees twice.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Today's essay will be turned over to Innis Brown, well known sports authority on everything from golf to the Brooklyn Dodgers before the war began. Writing from Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland, Innis spins this one:

"Concerning the item about Wallace Wade probably getting the Kentucky football coaching job, (Ed. Note: Wade signed to coach Duke again since this letter was written) you might be interested to know that he missed going there by an eyelash at the time he first signed with Alabama shortly after World War I."

"He had been assistant coach to Dan McGugin at Vanderbilt and had decided it was time to strike out on his own. He had been in communication both with Kentucky and Alabama, and was finally invited up to Lexington to talk things over with the athletic board."

"The meeting developed into a very pleasant chat in which football stories and experiences were rehearsed, and everything appeared to be going favorably. Finally the chairman of the board suggested that it was about time they got down to brass tacks, namely, passed on whether Wallace was the man Kentucky wanted."

"The chairman then suggested that the board hold a little private session, and asked Wallace if he would be good enough to absent himself and wait in the lobby for a few minutes while the board mulled things over."

"Wallace hid himself to the lobby, expecting to be called back in a few minutes. Apparently the deliberations required more time than he expected, and the longer he waited the more his temper rose. Finally, he couldn't stand it any longer."

"Returning to the room, Wallace knocked on the door and demanded to know 'how come?' He was upset and showed it. His action was so surprising to the board that it aroused their resentment, and they decided then and there that they didn't believe they wanted him. He left, and a short time afterward signed with Alabama."

"But here was the kicker. The board, while Wade was downstairs, had decided to vote by written ballot. The ballots had been written and dropped into a hat, but before they could be counted Wallace returned to the room."

"After the thing was all over and Wallace had gone, someone thought to count the ballots. They showed that Wade had been elected coach! If he goes there now, it will certainly be by way of a long detour."

Santa Anita Opens 55-Day Richest Meet

Arcadia, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—The richest racing meeting ever scheduled, Santa Anita's ninth, attracts 40,000 persons today.

The opening card is highlighted by the $25,000 California breeders' champion stakes at one mile for two-year-olds.

Moviemani Louis B. Mayer has what the handicappers call a "mortal lock" (although there's no such thing in racing) for the breeders' championship. He has three youngsters entered—Honeymoon, Moneybags and Charivari. One of 'em, almost everybody agrees, ought to win; some of the handicappers pick the Mayer trio to finish one-two-three.

This is the first of 55 days of racing on the Arcadia oval. The cheapest of the 440 races scheduled will pay $3,000; the richest, the Santa Anita handicap and the Santa Anita Derby will be worth $100,000 added each. There will be five other stakes for $50,000 each.

CANNERS TAKE 2 FROM ALUMNI

Biglerville high school's cagers took two of three games played with alumni teams Friday evening.

The varsity boys copped their third victory in as many starts by gaining a 39-32 triumph. The Canners got off to a 23-13 lead in the first half and then fought off an alumni rally in the final period.

M. Roddy outscored the entire alumni sextet by tallying 23 points as the Biglerville girls scored their first win of the season 35-31.

The Biglerville jayvees were overwhelmed by an alumni aggregation in the third game 33-17.

Next Friday Biglerville will entertain Littlestown as the Adams County league gets underway.

The biggest handicap to 1946 cars will be 1936 driving.

Tip-Off Of Heating
One of the inexcusable things in car ownership is not to sense when the engine is starting to overheat. You really don't need a motor temperature gauge to know when the cooling system is starting to go wrong, provided you are a keen observer of engine behavior. A sure sign is a tendency for the engine to surge when you are pushing it on a hill. That is, there will be a sensation as if the car were headed into gusts of wind or the brakes were being applied intermittently or very slightly. But what is happening, of course, is simply a variation in carburetion due to excessive heating of the incoming gases. The situation is also complicated by reason of the fact that valve stems will expand, taking up clearance, and causing some of the valves to seat poorly. There is just enough escape of gases to lower compression in one or two cylinders, and thus make the engine lack smoothness.

Handling The New Gas
Some of the new gasoline on the market, like the inferior wartime stuff we were using, may call for some changes in ignition and carburetion, not to mention handling of the engine. Timing should be well advanced so as to get the greatest power and pick-up, and to help offset other things, such as speed, which might hold down economy. Then it may be necessary to change to smaller carburetor jets as the mixture probably will be a bit on the rich side. Another thing to avoid is too much pumping on the accelerator, during starting or when hill climbing. The new gas requires less choking, too. You may find it necessary to have the automatic choke control readjusted so as to allow for quicker opening of the choke valve as the engine warms up.

Just For Your Safety
If you find that some other car is skidding into yours on an icy street or road, release your brakes to ease the shock.

Watch that late afternoon drop in temperature which turns a wet surface into a perfect set-up for skidding.

The trick in using tire chains is to drive as slowly as you would if you were not using them. That gives you the needed margin for real safety.

Sure They'll Drive Again
There has been a lot in the public prints about special controls for cars to enable disabled war veterans to drive, but the December issue of Mechanix Illustrated magazine carries a story that tells what the industry has decided to do with regard to this very important matter. The tentative plan, according to the article, is for the car manufacturers to supply packaged units to their service stations. These kits will be made up of the special equipment purchased, in turn, from companies producing the new controls. This sounds very practical. It is true that the equipment can be applied to new as well as to old something very much wrong with the car, eliminates it, and then is disappointed because he still has trouble. A woman reader had been complaining about inability to get her car started properly and at the same time noticed that when desiring to pick up speed while driving slowly the engine acted as if it didn't get enough gas. A new fuel pump checked the starting trouble but failed to have any effect on the other condition, and she was puzzled. Further checking revealed that the carburetor's float level was too high. When the engine was loading there was an overrich mixture, and consequent bucking. She figured it as just the opposite.

Helps The New Pump
It's odd how so many motorists who try to check water pump squealing by putting emulsifying oil into the cooling system will forget to give the pump a headstart when replacing it. This is a perfect time to add a little internal lubricant. But be sparing with the oil. A very little of it goes a long way you will discover by putting an ounce of it into a gallon can of water. The oil will turn the water into a milky appearing solution. This is really effective in protecting the pump oil seal but will also check rusting in the cooling system, winter or summer.

INVENTORY
Business men take inventory. Just to know the past year's story. For the owners and the bosses. Must add up their gains and losses. And their costs and selling prices. Stock, and old and new devices. And, when all is summed together, from the total find out whether there's a better way of doing than the one they've been pursuing.

In our own lives let us do it: Take the year past and review it. Did we all our courage give it? Did we well and truly live it? What, when disappointments crossed us, Did our fits of temper cost us? Did the total of our labors Prove us faithful friends and neighbors? Would less taking and more giving Make a better way of living?

Today's Talk
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THESE WITNESSES OF OURS
The younger Pliny, upon losing a very close friend, remarked: "I have lost the witness of my life. I fear I may henceforth live more carelessly."

I believe that we all have witnesses upon whom we depend more than we ever realize. So many times, in losing a near and dear friend, this feeling comes over me that I have lost a witness whose sense, honor, and wholesome understanding, I have unconsciously imbibed.

We are watched more than we like to admit. On the other hand, it is encouraging to feel that we have a character that is worth watching, or witnessing. I know that I have been the witness to many a friend whose influence has been great in my life. It is nice to feel that we are just folks, and that there is a great deal of the together spirit that inspires us on, making us more and more akin to one another.

It is a wholesome feeling to think that even those beloved of ours, who have long left us, still remain as silent witnesses of ours. I do feel that we are apt to "live more carelessly" if we fail to feel this way.

Openness of mind, and of conduct, is a most wholesome thing. A man, whom I greatly admired as a boy, came to our house for the night and I asked him to write his name in my autograph album. He did this, and added this line: "Live as though under the eye of the Lord." That was long, long ago. I have no idea what became of the album, but that line has stayed with me. It is a good line to stay with anyone!

These witnesses of ours influence us more than we ever know. It is well that they do. So many of the influences in life that have a bearing upon our success, or happiness, come over us unconsciously. If we were aware of them, much of their power over us would be gone.

Dr. Johnson had a great witness in Mr. Boswell. The world thanks him for his task, performed so enthusiastically, and it is fortunate that the good and learned Doctor made no fuss over the fact.

PULLMAN CASE
Philadelphia, Dec. 29 (AP)—The nation's sleeping car business will be operated by the Pullman company until March 31, 1946. A special U. S. expediting court authorized continuance of Pullman operation Wednesday until sale of the service to a combine of 43 railroads for $75,000,000 is completed. Pullman contracts with the railroads expire next Monday.

HELP, POLICE!
East St. Louis, Ill. (AP)—Raymond Cardella suffered a bitter humiliation soon after his appointment as police chief in suburban Alcoa. He parked his official car here while shopping and returned to find someone had stolen not only the car's red light but the siren to boot.

Eden Succeeds Samuel Hoare (Copyright 1935, By Associated Press) London, Dec. 23 — Great Britain chose young Anthony Eden for her foreign secretary Sunday and announced a far-reaching army reorganization scheme in the face of louder war talk over Europe.

Italy immediately took the appointment of the 38-year old Eden as a direct slap. Italians have learned to dislike him intensely because of his forceful leadership, as British minister for league affairs, of Geneva's sanction siege.

Eden succeeds Sir Samuel Hoare, co-author of the Anglo-French peace "mistake."

Warns Masons of Dangers of Dictatorship. Urging members of the Masonic order to live as "militant Christians," Major Lynn J. Adams, superintendent of the Pennsylvania state police, predicted the end of fraternal orders if the democratic form of American government is overthrown and a dictatorship is established.

Major Adams sounded the warning in an address at the annual St. John's night banquet of Good Samaritan lodge, 336, Free and Accepted Masons of Gettysburg, at the Blue Parrot tea room, Friday evening.

S. Lester Scott, pastmaster of the lodge, presided at the banquet which was attended by 165 Masons from Gettysburg and other lodges.

Time For New Belt
To those motorists who often wonder when the time has arrived for replacing a fan or a generator belt let me suggest the simple rule of considering a belt serviceable until such time as it starts to ride on the bottom of the pulleys. You can trim off frayed edges without damage to the belt, and with improvement in its operation; but when a belt starts to miss contact with the pulley edges and just rides the bottom, the time has arrived for a replacement. Incidentally, glazing of a belt is usually caused by slipping or by bottoming in its pulleys.

Happier New Year
For 1946 let us not forget a few motoring resolutions. Here are six that have been suggested to me by some of my friends:

1. I resolve to remember that a heavy foot on the accelerator usually brings a heavy heart.
2. I will constantly bear in mind that pedestrians have no bumpers, no rear view mirror, no efficient brakes.
3. I will buy more of the best thing in service—good lubrication.
4. I resolve to be conscious at all times of the rights of others, to act as if I were the others.
5. I am determined not to overlook the fact that never before has there been such a wide variation in standards of braking, acceleration and reliability—some cars being fresh from the assembly line while millions of others are in various stages of senility.
6. I resolve to remember that these resolutions must be carried out every day of the year, not just for a week or a month.

Mechanic Joe Speaking:
"Since it is always important to know whether the automatic advance control of the distributor is operating properly you should occasionally try the test of rotating the propeller cam to see if it returns to normal promptly when released. This is done by first removing the distributor's cap. This will expose the top of the shaft. Take hold of the end by placing your fingers over the cam and turning it in the normal direction of rotation. When you release it the shaft should return to its original position. There should be no sticking. Any such stickage would cause a

"No comment," said the veteran Pennsylvania Democrat when reminded of this.

Guffey said he would spend the anniversary "working at my desk—as usual." There are no plans for a celebration, he told a reporter. A bachelor, Guffey makes his home here with his three sisters.

Chapter 10

Several days later Edith wrote her mother a letter. She knew Laura would be anxious to hear her impressions of her old home and that the letter would be waiting for her when she returned to the city.

"Well, here I am," she wrote,
"and you were right about 'Rose-lands.' Except that even your most vivid and colorful descriptions only half prepared me for the amazing beauty and comfort of the place. As for the people, I'm afraid I haven't been here long enough to form much of an estimate. Except for Whit—my father—whom, surprisingly, I like! Perhaps it is because he and I are so very much alike—in appearance at least. Why didn't you tell me that I was to find myself almost an exact image of him?"

"And yet, I can see that we're really very little alike as to personal traits. I believe I have a stability that Whit doesn't possess—I like to think of it as a 'steadfastness of spirit!' Does that sound confused? I mean it only as a compliment to you who are so full of virtues you are certain to have bequeathed a few of them to me!"

"Perhaps you'll notice that I'm calling my father 'Whit.' To tell the truth I didn't know what to call him and I avoided speaking to him directly as long as possible. But on the morning after my arrival I found him alone in the breakfast room. I imagine this room is a recent addition to the house. It is lovely, facing east and containing the most beautiful and impudent parrot named 'Agnes.' She and Whit are the only ones about the place who can say what they please to Grandmother and get away with it.
You'd almost die to hear Agnes call her 'Old girl!'"

"But back to Whit. We were eating our breakfast and talking of casual things when suddenly I was horrified to hear myself saying,
'Please pass the toast, Whit!'"

"He looked at me in a rather startled way and then wrinkled up his fine eyes in a smile. 'I was wondering what you'd call me. Since I've never been a real father to you—"

"Well, it's going to be nice—being friends now,' I interrupted with my fatal fear of hurting anyone. Though goodness knows he was right about it."

"At any rate, we smiled at each other and I've been calling him
'Whit' quite easily ever since!"

"The same morning, I heard a truck stopping outside and looked out to see Aunt Josie buying vegetables from a truck gardener. I wouldn't have been interested had Whit and I not met the same man as he brought me out to Roselands.
So now I spoke to Whit about him.
'The man with the vegetables—is he a neighbor?' I asked innocently."

"Whit glanced back over his shoulder and scowled darkly. 'My wife's brother—Berk Angus,' he said. 'A shiftless fellow—'"

"But he doesn't look shiftless!"
I argued. 'He looks clean and happy and prosperous!"

"Oh, he's all of that, I guess, he admitted reluctantly. 'If one can gauger prosperity by winning prizes at fairs on beans and corn and to-matos.'"

"I could see he didn't like Berk Angus for some reason and so I said no more about him. But I felt I should like to know him. He had such a well-set-up look about him as if he were used to vigorous outdoor exercise—and I'm sure in good clothes he'd be strikingly handsome.
Afterwards, mother—I found he has quite a distinguished war record—he's a flyer with many bombing missions to his credit, now honorably discharged. And he gives fruit and vegetables to this family, though he makes his living by selling them, and they accept it as their just due because his sister, Barbara, is Whit's wife. And without much bother about 'thank you, either! It all seems amazing to me!"

"And of course, you'll be wanting to know something of Barbara. I remember so clearly your saying, 'Don't be snooty to her on my account—she'll have enough to bear!'"

"You were right. In the few days I've been here I can see that none of them are very nice to her—not even Whit, who really loves her. I believe. Don't ask me why I believe that, for I can't tell except to say I feel it's so. In appearance, she's exquisite—you can tell she gives much attention to grooming."

"I suppose there's not much I can tell you about Grandmother.
She almost terrified me at first, but underneath I believe she's growing fond of me! I guess it's because her precious Whit, who can do no wrong in her eyes, was responsible for my creation."

"Poor, gentle, apologetic Aunt Josie—what a life she must live, haltered and led by Grandmother Eugenia. And yet I'm convinced she must have been lovely in her youth."

"I can well imagine her being the victim of a blighted love affair. I understand Dr. Clark Bennett, one of the community's leading physicians, was the man in the case."

"What a gossip! But I must tell you that Whit is going to teach me to ride a horse. I'm terribly thrilled."

Riding With Russell

lot of night driving. Kindly advise me how to adjust the generator's regulator for a higher output.
H. L. D.

A. Before we get into the technical features of voltage regulation check the generator's belt and its brushes. You'll probably find that this unit itself isn't delivering normally. Cold output should be 20 amps.

Q. Is it really advisable to insert a coil of wire inside the lower water hose when replacing this connection? I do not have a new coil on hand and the old one looks pretty well shot. Wm. L. K.

A. Don't try to use the old one because it may break and partially block the flow of water. A new coil is a necessity, for even with a new piece of hose there is a good chance of collapse. Remember that as the radiator acts and clogs the water pump's suction will tend to draw the lower hose inward.

Q. I have tried everything to boost gasoline mileage, but nothing that I do seems to make any material

me to ride a horse. I'm terribly thrilled."

"I miss you mother, but please know that I am contented and happy for the short time I shall be here. Tell Mr. Crosby I'll be back in time to pose for you for all the fall and winter numbers of 'Calendar!'"

Edith sat back and laid down her pen. She knew that she must say something—send some message to Christopher. The intervening days had in no way lessened the pain in the heart that thought of him always brought, though new scenes and faces had helped.

She picked up her pen again, set her chin squarely and wrote: "Give Chris my very best regards and tell him that I am looking forward to being back in New York in a few months, when you two will have gotten to the place where three will not be a crowd!"

"Until then, I am always, Your loving Edith."

A Crescent-J cattle brand plays a vital part in RKO Radio's latest Zane Grey western, "Wanderer of the Wasteland." The brand is the only clue the hero has to the identity of his father's slayer; the plot of the exciting picture deals with the brave buster's relentless search for the killer, and the stirring outcome of his quest. James Warren, Hollywood's newest outdoor star, has the title-role in the offering, with Richard Martin, Audrey Long sharing the leading parts with him. Robert Barrat and Robert Clarke have other roles.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Claude Rains, Merle Oberon and Charles Korvin who appear in "This Love of Ours."

Screen drama at its finest is the description given to Universal's production of "This Love of Ours," adapted from the Luigi Pirandello play, "Come Prima Meglio De Prima" and opening Friday at the Majestic Theatre.

The film stars Merle Oberon, Claude Rains and the new Hollywood "find," Charles Korvin. It introduces the school girl actress, Sue England, in one of the season's best fledgling performances.

"This Love of Ours" is the story of a Paris actress deserted by her doctor husband when he believes her unfaithful. Their re-union a decade later, and the problem of their daughter, who believes her mother is dead, are main keys of the powerful drama.

Famed Designer Of Stained Glass Dies
Boston, Mass., Dec. 29 (AP)—Charles J. Connick, who designed the stained glass windows in Heinz chapel at the University of Pittsburgh, died today at the age of 70.
A native of Springboro, Crawford county, Pa., Connick went to Pittsburgh as a child and at 19 became a stained glass artist with Rudy Brothers.
Since 1913, he had operated a studio and workshop here.
His reputation as an outstanding stained glass designer brought him commissions to do windows in churches throughout the world.
He created the famed rose window of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York city and designed the east window and others in the Church of St. Vincent Ferrer and in St. Patrick's Cathedral, also in New York city.

Philadelphia, Dec. 29 (AP)—One man was injured slightly when explosions in downtown Philadelphia blew two iron manhole covers into the air. Michael P. Huggard, 38, of Upper Darby, Pa., was knocked to the pavement by one manhole cover. Flames which followed the blast scorched his clothing.
In the second blast, the manhole cover struck an automobile.
plan for establishing a commission to explore all phases of atomic energy. The Michigan senator's view found general acceptance in Congress.

General Approval
Vandenberg said in a statement he was advised by the State Department that "full security requirements" will be met in the proposed international commission's dealings with atomic energy.

The Michigan senator, a member of the special Senate committee on atomic development, is known to favor retention of the secret until it has been demonstrated that international controls to prevent its future military use are workable.

Vandenberg said he heartily endorsed the Moscow communique

Curb City Cowboys
Chicago, (AP)—There will be no more "ride 'em cowboy" horseback riding in the city and Cook county forest preserves. The county commissioners, aiming to halt the practice of "wild west" riding have ruled that a rider will have to own a license and he must be astride a duly licensed horse. Furthermore, his license may be revoked for from 30 days to a year if he gallops through the preserves, heedless of hikers and pedestrians.
